The "American Zionist Movement" (AZM) received a special status this week on behalf of the ECOSOC Committee, the economic and social committee of the United Nations, and will be an advisory body to the world organization. This status gives it the ability to participate in the events of the United Nations and its debates as well as to hold events within the framework of the United Nations on her behalf.

The organization was established in 1993 in order to bring closer the Jewish community in the United States and Zionism, and works to promote the values of Zionism in the United States. The movement promotes dialogue and cooperation between various Zionist organizations, and in light of its recognition as an advisory movement to the United Nations, it will also be able to do so under international auspices, and within the corridors of the United Nations.

This step comes after the strenuous diplomatic activity of Israel's ambassador to the UN, Gilad Erdan, and the Israeli delegation, who have been active in the past year in order to promote the organization's candidacy and have raised the issue in meetings with ambassadors and senior diplomats for Israel, the production of the Israel Independence Day event with the participation of UN ambassadors and more.

Ambassador Erdan: "We proved that Zionism is no longer a dirty word in the corridors of the UN. I congratulate AZM, which is leading an important effort to strengthen the State of Israel, and I am sure that the movement will now be able to further expand and deepen its work and influence".

According to him, the organization "is a force multiplier for Israel in the international arena. I fight every day at the UN so that Zionism is considered an important and positive movement and I am happy that after the despicable decisions made at the UN in the past, the understanding of the importance of the Zionist enterprise is seeping in".
